ers it provides for are strong and stable, as I be to guarantee the rights of citizens and the the State. the Revolution is now anchored to the princi-gave it birth. The Revolution is finished. BONAPARTE, ROGER Ducos, SIEY&S. ;rust that the ensuing campaign will be more to the French arms than the last, e object of the Republic in prosecuting the >ring about a peace. It is on the army corn- General Moreau that rests the Republic's f peace for the moment. The Government has nfidence in the zeal and military capacity of >reau.

isidering the present condition of the army of Jonsuls of the Republic declare: that General intrusted with extraordinary powers. He id and dismiss any general who has lost his He may disband corps and cashier officers for ition.

'o His Majesty the King of Great Britain and "ailed by the wishes of the French nation to igistracy of the Republic, I think it proper, ip my duties, to notify Your Majesty of the >on.